

SEERadio Amateurs
See Television at Oakland Meeting

Enthusiastic over a television demonstration which climaxed their convention, a large delegation of local amateur radio operators returned to San Jose yesterday from the annual Pacific Coast division convention of the American Radio Relay League at Oakland.

According to those who attended, a demonstration of television was presented by the Farnsworth television laboratories of San Francisco. This, it was said, was as clear as miniature movies on the screen.

Among resolutions adopted was one directed to the Radio Manufacturers' Association urging higher standards in manufacture of small broadcast receivers. Several other resolutions were presented by the Santa Clara county Amateur Radio association by E. J. Amarantes, section communications manager, whose selection for this position was confirmed at the convention. The local resolutions were adopted as instructions for Director S. G. Culver.
