Winter Radio

I think everyone would agree that Spring, Summer and Fall are absolutely beautiful times of the year in the U.P. For the radio enthusiast, these seasons offer many diversions such as Hamfests, operating events like Field Day and the opportunity to inspect and repair any antenna damage caused by our challenging winters.

The Winter season, while many consider beautiful in its own right, offers less outdoor activity for the average Ham, particularly ones who have mobility challenges. There are local outdoor operating events, such as the Noquemanon Ski Marathon and UP 200 Sled Dog race, and these events allow us to hone our cold weather operating skills (you never know when a disaster may strike).

When not out shoveling or snow blowing, winter does allow the average Ham the opportunity to spend some quality time in our shacks. In the "olden days", the shack offered a place where you could actually keep warm by the glow of the vacuum tubes. And the changes in the cold weather propagation could mean some startling DX contacts.

So my article today is about spending some of your winter time being more radio-active. For a comprehensive list of radio-related operating opportunities you can refer to these websites:

www.arrrl.org

And don't forget our local winter operating events. In addition to the two mentioned above, there is Skywarn Recognition Day, usually held the first Friday in December, and, of course, our weekly 10-meter net that meets on 28.400 each Friday at 7:00 pm. For the 2-meter enthusiast, I believe there are also weekly nets. Maybe someone else can provide the information on those. And for those who enjoy that “eyeball QSO”, don’t forget the annual HARA Swap & Shop held the first Saturday in February! So until next time, stay safe on the roads and I hope to hear you on the air!
